DAYLIGHT TURNED ON

Carefully-Prepared Document

of Grace Lusk's Read Into

Murder Trial Record.

Waukesha, Wis., May 21.—Grace Lusk's code of morals came to the full light of day today in the crowded court room where she is on trial for the murder of Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts, wife of Dr. David Roberts, for whose love Grace Lusk slew. They came in a note written by Grace Lusk as she lay bleeding from self-inflicted wounds after she killed the rival for her heart's affection.

The note was brief. It said:
"This is the work of a man who said he loved me. God forgive me, Fay Bianca, for the hope I have spoiled."
And then was introduced a document carefully written by Miss Lusk in

And then was introduced a document carefully written by Miss Lusk in which her code of morals were drawn and displayed her effort to dissect her fever heart for the world that would not understand. In it she seeks to excuse all she had done and was about

By this document the state hopes to show that the murder was deliberately planned and the defense hopes to prove by the same token that only an insame woman could have written such epistles.

"I am not the type of woman to be-lied to. Oh, I am sorry, sorry, sorry that this happened, and yet I had rather have had this experience, pain-ful as it has been, than to have gone through life without knowing what love can mean. I can't honestly feel that I have been 'sinful.' We have cared as much for one another, as a man or woman can. The only treason cared as much for one another, as a man or woman can. The only treason has been in not telling Mrs. R. I have always wanted to, but he was afraid. Ah, well, it will soon be over. I am not afraid. I have loved my friends very, very dearly. I have made my work my religion. I have tried very hard to put the best there was in me into it. 'Labor est orate,' sang the monks in the olden times. God, my brothers, takes our toil for homage sweet. I hope my father doesn't take it too hard. I have never caused him so very much worry. I want him to

How she prepared for the tragic end of her romance to the last detail was bared in another document enclosed in an envelope marked: "Open in case of accident only."

She said she did not want much fuse over her funeral. Only a little prayer. She wanted to be laid away in her "new grey party dress." Her turquoise pin and two diamond rings she also wanted. Then she told how she wanted her money disposed of.

OF GERMAN TRAINING

Dr. Len Broughton Wants to

Oust All Such Men From Universities.

(Special to The News.)

Knoxville, May 21.—Ban on professors who received final touches of training in a German institution is ad-vocated by Dr. Len G. Broughton, noted Haptist leader, formerly of Lon-don and Atlanta. He wants to see such men ousted not only from Bap-tist, but from universities of other denominations, declaring that it is the only salvation from Hun propaganda which has attempted to give them the impression that training in Germany is necessary to complete education and "kultur," This is also his interpreta-

GIRL'S CODE OF MORALS

Secretary McAdoo and Administration Leaders Outline Considerations.

(International News Service.) Washington, May 21.—Many considerations aside from the need for more revenue enter into the demand by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo for a new tax measure at the present session of congress.

Chief among these considerations, as outlined by an administration leader today, are:

The exact effect of added tax burdens upon the people of the nation.

The conviction that war taxes should be laid on layer after layer as business becomes adjusted to war conditions, and that the time has come for assess-ing another layer, business being ex-cellent.

The wish to avoid the loss of severa hundred million dollars which might result from a delay of six months in upward revision of consumuption

The theory that inflated expenditures should be cancelled with inflated values, so far as possible, in order that future generations may not be compelled to give double value to be compelled to give double value to wipe them out.

It was pointed out that the United States today is paying war expenses, including loans to the allies, on a basis of 30 per cent, taxation and 70 per cent, of bonds. The time is ripe, Secretary McAdoo believes, to restrict further bond sales to the lowest possible level, raising a far greater proportion than in the past from taxation. epistles.

Here it is:

"It's a bit hard to write this—for the majority of the folk who don't care for me and who have been so active in criticising me. I have no explanation. I should have known better than to play with fire; I should have known that men have, one code of honor for the women they love and another for the women to whom they are married. I have had the theory that love between men and women was stronger than all the legal ceremonies in the world—when that was lacking there was no sanctity in marriage. I still believe so—but the man in the case has been too much of a coward to face his wife and tell her the truth—he has never been true to her.

than in the past from taxation.
"With half our wealth, England is levying far heavier taxes than the United States," one man close to Secretary McAdoo said today, "No one there is complaining—unless the complaint be that the taxes are not heavy plaint be that the taxes are not heavy enough. So it would be in the United States. When the principle of paying off inflated indebtedness with inflated values is explained. American business will welcome the opportunity to pay more as we go. Particularly if it is made evident that they will receive the same profits made in the prosperous period that preceded our entrance into the war and a little more beside."

Congress up to this time has not been convinced that new revenue legislation is necessary because it has looked over the score and seen that the revenues, together with bond sales authorized, will come very near striking a balance.

NEED OF CARRYING OUT

Bakers Warned by Hoover That Violations Would Be Vigorously Prosecuted.
(International News Service.) Washington, May 21.-Increased cost of bread is unnecessary and will not be condoned by the food administration. This was made plain today when Food Administrator Hoover addressed a joint meeting of chiefs of the baking division of the administration and chairmen of the state committees of the national bakers' service board.

The need of carrying out all of the regulations of the administration was pointed out, with a warning that dragitie action would follow the discovery of violations. The use of wheat substitutes and the necessity for a camerical service of the service of paign of education in their use
